Peak of the day:

Differences Among cultures and civilizations: Conflict or integration?

The session started with a documentary film to introduce the importance of different cultures.

Then Prince Hassan bin Talal, saluted President Abdelfattah El-Sisi, stressing that the promotion of the value of the law in its international form is the best way to avoid the clash of civilizations. Dr. Zahi Hawass said that the Egyptian civilization, rooted in history, has never been a civilization of conflict, but a civilization of strength, production and prosperity protected by a strong army to ward off the dangers and greed surrounding Egypt throughout the ages.

Dr. Shibley Telhami added that the idea of a clash of civilizations is a threat to the whole world. Delegations had an impressive appearance as Jean-Francois Faux emphasized that civilization should be an extension of the public property of the peoples, while the Serbian Minister of Youth and Sports stated that major intellectuals rejected the idea of a clash of civilizations.

The session ended with a statement by Dr. Mustafa Al-Faki explaining that civilizations are basically based on ethical and moral values, and that there isn't any civilization can continue without a moral and ethical references.

More about the discussions:

- A representative of the Syrian delegation thanked the Egyptian people and appealed to the Egyptian authorities to issue a personal card for each Syrian in Egypt while reserving the right of return.
- Congo Minister of Youth stated that irregular migration is essentially an economic problem and that donor countries should provide the expelling States with the Financial expenses for a solution to the refugee problem. (Aswan hall, Panel discussion on the adverse impacts of irregular migration on youth around the world).
- Dr. Amani Abu Zaid Commissioner for Infrastructure and Energy in Africa. Said that the increase in population and infrastructure is one of the most important challenges facing the continent of Africa, but an advantage given is the increasing proportion of youth, making it a young continent capable of development.

The Egyptian Experience in building the future – A presentation of the presidential leadership program and the national academy for youth training

The session discussed the support that Egyptian government provide to build a Youth Leadership Base. Dr. Hala Elsaed said: "The program aims to build a youth base to strengthen the government in all leadership positions". Dr. Tarek Shawky added that "the selection in PLP was conducted with real transparency. Nagy, one of the PLP students said "The program made me think of all events from more than one direction". Preseidnt Abdelfattah Elisist said that supporting and qualifying of youth should not stop at the presidential program, and that the government provided more than 2 million opportunities through national projects, and that we have a problem in providing job opportunities for graduates and we are working hard to solve this problem.

Panel discussion on the adverse impacts of irregular migration on youth

Foreign Minister Sameh Shukri stressed that Egypt has always been one of the leading countries in combating human trafficking. Shukri added that Egypt does not know the concept of camps and refugees. "Migrants are people who have been embraced by the homeland." In another context, the head of the International Center for Strategic Studies Badra Qaalloul stressed that Egypt should not become a transit point for illegal immigrants. Mohamed Abdel Aziz, an educational expert and researcher on illegal immigration, said statistics confirm the existence of 22 million refugees in the world. And that civil society must play a major role in combating this phenomenon.

A youth vision to achieving sustainable development at a global level

The session discussed the role of youth in achieving sustainable development. Dr.Hala AlSaead, Minister of planning, has clarified the consistency of the United Nation's strategy with the international goals, which puts youth and women on the top of its agenda. The session also discussed the role of the state in exploiting Human resources, specially youth who represents 68,8. Regarding education, the government is going to expand in establishing private and governmental universities to accommodate a large number of students, in addition to linking education with the labor market through establishing logistic universities in the suz canal province. social disasters.

- American journalist, "Leslie Morgan", said "Real leadership is shaped by self-awareness, not awareness of others, and that the will is the key to learning, living and loving ... adding that education is the key to solving the mystery in producing leaders of civilized societies. ( Luxor hall, how does the world create its leaders? ).
